

New deaths in late July were above 5 per million people in countries where vaccination falls below 30% of population

